Insist that The Bard is "a second-class race-horse." ell, where are the first class ones then? Hanover could do nothing against The Bard. He tound the journey too far for him at the pace which The Bard set, and was a pittable wreck in the final half-mile. But he still had speed and staying power igh to outrun Volante by a dozen lengths, and only inexcusable and paralyzing piece of carelessness McLaughlin's part enabled Volante to get the McLaughlin's part enabled lace from Hanover. When McLaughlin realized that had as much chance of catching The Bard as an Alpine glacier, which moves a foot each year, has of rtaking a stroke of lightning, he eased the son of Hindoo, and Murphy, on Volante, caught him dream-ing and just snatched the place from him. This caused ch unpleasant talk. Really there was no shadow of excuse for McLaughlin, but even the best of American jockeys at times makes mistakes.

The track was a swamp, deep in mud and water, and the rain fell incessantly. But there were some bright spots in the general gloom. One was The Bard's magnificent running. Another was McLaugh-lin's riding of Seymour to victory in the fifth race, although Sheridan gave the two-year-olds the most reprehensible start of the meeting, shutting out Harrisburg and Miss Cody altogether. But why the trainer of Montana Miner Morrissey's stable should have put a green boy, whose talents are hardly up to the level of pumping water for the filly to drink, on the back of Miss Cody is past finding out. Miss Cody ought to have won the race, but with such a rider she could hardly have kept pace with an Eric canal boat whose traction mule power had deserted it. Servia seems to be common junk. She was no-Then, too, McLaughlin, riding with Portland's speed, proved an invincible combination in the last race, although for some incomprehensible reason the ublic made Brambleton the favorite.

The favorites in the first three races were defeated one after another, to the unbounded delight of the bookmakers, who profited largely. Lady Primrose combed to the lightly-weighted Golden Reel. McLaughlin's skill could not get Favor home before Dry Monopole, although the trainer and the friends of the Gratz stable did not expect the little horse to out-run the big one. E. J. Baldwin's Winona won the Gazelle Stakes easily in slow time, with Mr. Haggin's Blithesome second and the Dwyers' Bella B. third. Governor Bowie's Belle d'Or could undoubtedly have captured this race if she had been in a fit condition to run, as she outclassed the others. But she caught cold on Friday night and was coughing violently yesterday morning. Hence she was withdrawn.

Impure Blood

Is the cause of Boils, Carbuneles, Pimples, Eczems, and cutaneous erup-tions of all kinds. There can be no permanent cure for these complaints until the poison is eliminated from the sys-tem. To do this thoroughly, the safest and most effective medicine is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Give it a trial.

OVER TIMBER AND TURF AT CEDARHURST. MR. LYNCH IN A HALO OF GLORY AND MUD-BOB MILES TO THE FORE.

Gloom, dismal gloom, hovered over the Cedarhurst green vesterday. The turf of grateful hue was be dimmed by heavy gray clouds of fog, the seats of the grand stand were water-logged by reason of numerous leaks in the roof, and before two fields of jumpers had rushed over the course the turf resembled a morass. The thousand or so of spectators huddled shiveringly under an inhospitable roof, and the club-house were painfully devoid of brilliant and surprising

Yet, withal, the racing, such as it was, was good and by a peculiar inconsistency of fate, the favorites in the betting made a good showing. The fields were small, and several times contained in their respective rosters the names of equine freaks that, by all principles of justice, should have been in competition with electricity in Fourth-ave, rather than glory in opportunities to distinguish themselves by the default

Such an instance was notable in the fifth race, when Schoolmaster, who, though none of the best, is infinitely better than Retribution, fell over the stone wall, giving N. G. Lorillard's gelding the place. P. P. Lynch got a beautiful tumble that time and was knocked senseless. The whole posse of spectators rushed to the scene of the accident, and gazed at the gentleman jockey until he found his wind, and walked off in a haio of glory and mud.

In the last race Pat Cakley, who was well supported in the betting, took the tantrums and refused peremptorily to take chances with the "in-and-out." He evidently remembered his performance the other day, when he nearly killed Mike Daly by falling over a hurdle. As it was, the noble steed gave a little side-show of prancing and high kicking for the benefit of his backers, and that was the extent of sport they got out of him.

FINE BALL PLAYING ON A WET DAY.

CROWDS OF PEOPLE AT ALL THE GAMES. PHILADELPHIA WINS IN A CLOSE CONTEST-HOW

THE OTHER GAMES CAME OUT.

Boston, May 26.—It required ten innings to decide to-day's contest. It was simply a battle of pitchers, and Buffinton had the best of it. In the tenth inning Clements knocked the ball over the fence and scored the winning run. The fielding of the Philadelphias was fine.

MRS. CLEVELAND SEES A COLLEGE GAME. YALE AND PRINCETON PLAY AN EXHIBITION GAME FOR HER ENTERTAINMENT.

Princeton, N. J., May 26 (Special).—At the Yale-Princeton game this afternoon, Mrs. Cleveland sat in the grand stand, which was prettily decorated with orange and black. She was compelled to leave before the game was finished to catch the 5:20 train. On account of the inclemency of the weather only an exhibition gyme was played. The regular championship game will be played on June 5, possibly on the Polo Grounds. Princeton was unable to hit Stage. Moreur was hit hard at times, especially in the fifth, when four basehits, a base on balls and an inexcusable error of L. Price gave Yale three runs. Prince-ton scored two runs in the fifth inning by a basehit, an error and two bases on balls. Yale scored two runs in the second by a two-base hit of Dann, a three-bagger of the second by a two-base hit of Dann, a three-basker of Hunt and McBride's single. Stage pitched with great effect, in four innings striking out all three men. The game was uninteresting, owing no doubt to the fact that it was not one of the championship series. The score by

HARVARD WINS THE CHAMPIONSHIP FOR THE YEAR AND THE CHAMPIONSHIP CUP.

Had the Executive Committee of the Intercollegiate Athletic Association tried to pick out a more disagreeable afternoon for the thirteenth annual field eeting of the association than they had yesterday they would have failed signally. When the games were started, at 2:30 p. m., the rain was pouring down in torrents and the Manhattan Athletle grounds were one great puddle. The judges, timers and measurers waded around under umbrellas and the only thing among the spectators and competitors that was not cold and damp was college feeling. Large delegations from Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Columbia, University of Pennsylvania and Swarihmore were present, while even more ladles than usual were on the grand stand, and exhibited their college preferences by the colors they wore.

The Harvard men were especially dem for they not only won the championship for this year, but also the championship cup, for which the different colleges have been striving for thirteen years. The cup is a handsome silver trophy, bearing thirteen shields, on each one of which is engraved the name of the champion college, the date and place, together with a list of contests won by that college, and the individual members, with their record for each year. The cup was to be given to the college winning the greatest number of shields. The thirtcenth shield was filled yesterday by Harvard, giving her eight shields to three for Columbia, one for Yale and one for Princeton. The result of yesterdays game was as follows: Harvard, seven first prizes and six second prizes; Yale, six first and three seconds; University of Pennsylvania, two firsts and three seconds; Columbia, one first and three seconds; Amherst, one

DR. ABBOTT LIKELY TO ACCEPT THE CALL.

NO PROBABILITY OF ANY FURTHER OPPOSITION TO HIM AS PASTOR OF PLYMOUTH CHURCH.

Lyman Abbott's lips whether he has consented to become the successor of Honry Ward Boecher. There is no doubt, of course, as to Dr. Abbott's decision.

He was unwilling last night to announce his decision beforehand through the press, preferring to make his action known first to his congregation from the pulpit.

Dr. Abbott was waited upon at his home, No. 70 Columbia Heights, by T. G. Shearman, A. D. Wheelock and Mr. Chapin, representing the church, and R. W. Ropes, Frank Rudd and John Claffin, representing the society, to inform him officially of his election to the pastorate. Dr. Abbott and the committee were in consultation for an hour, after which Dr. Abbott talked with a Tribune reporter. He did not wish to say what his decision was, but in answer to a question as to what plans he might make for the church next fall in case of his acceptance, Dr. Abbott laughingly replied: "When the fall campaign opens, come over and

The Rev. Samuel B. Halliday, assistant pastor

Plymouth Church, declined to say anything further yesterday about his opposition to Dr. Abbott. He referred the reporter to his statement at the meeting

A prominent member of the congregation, however, said in regard to the little breeze the opposition raised:

There are 1,600 members of the church. Of these only 460 were present at the election. That limited attendance signifies that there was a lack of interest in the ejection. But the deeper meaning is that many who were opposed to Dr. Abbott stayed away from the election simply because they realized the hopelessness of their opposition. I have received letters from some of those people. They had not centred on any candidate and they were not organized as Dr. Abbott's friends were. It is problematical whether the congregation will decrease, or what the opposition will do:

Samuel C. Ferris, who spoke against Dr. Abbott, is a fish and sait dealer in this city, at No. 183 Washingtonst. He is the speaker who declaimed:

"If an angel from Heaven stood on Plymouth platform six months and the congregation grow smaller, we out to say, 'shoo, fly away from Heaven,' etc.

Mr. Ferris said yesterday that the minority would acquiesce in Dr. Abbott's election, and he believed and hoped that all would be harmonious.

FIRE INSURANCE UNPROFITABLE.

It was reported yesterday that there was a move-ment on foot among some of the stockholders of the New-York Equitable Fire Insurance Company, the offices of which are at No. 58 Wall-st., to wind up the affairs of the company. A. A. Low, one of the stock-holders, was seen last evening by a Tribune reporter many of the smaller companies were going out of business. Fires are numerous, losses larger and the premiums too small to leave any margin for profit. In view of this, some of the stockholders think it best for the company to go into liquidation. THE NEWPORT SEASON.

NOT LIKELY TO BE BRILLIANT.

ONLY ABOUT HALF THE COTTAGES RENTED—PROPLE GOING TO EUROPE—PERSONAL NOTES.

Newport, R. I., May 26 (Special).—The fashionable season of 1888 is very near at hand. On June 1 the entire Casino establishment will be wide open, but the orchestra will not arrive until the first week in July. The Casino Club has been open since May 1, but no business to speak of has been done, and the receipts will not pay for the sweeping out of the apartments. The old club-house will take the best of the trade during the summer, and its success is now assured. The sum of $15,000 has been expended in improving and refurnishing the old club-house, which has the best of the Casino, owing to the fact that it is kept open all the year round.

The Italian hand organ brigade is here, and this is one sure sign that summer is near at hand. The cot-tagers are arriving daily, and busy times are ahead for the local residents, who, however, are not predict-ing a very brilliant season. Heretofore the tradesmen have not been backward in "booming" the city, but this year they see plainly that only about one-haif of the cottages have been rented, and they view with alarm the crowded steamers which are leaving New-York every week. It is unfortunate for Newport's interests that so many habitues are sailing for foreign lands, where the expense of living is not as large as t is claimed to be at the so-called fashionable summer esorts. However, it is hoped that Newport will have fairly prosperous summer, but it must be admitted that the outlook is not especially encouraging. But few cottages have been rented of late, and but a very small number have even asked for the privilege of inspecting "a cottage by the sea." The real estate agents expect a few more rentals, but they have not raised their expectations to a very high pitch. The significant reduction of the prices set opposite the houses "to rent." It is very gratifying, in view of this undesirable state of affairs, to learn that about two-thirds of the cottagers will occupy their own houses during the season of 1888. Good weather has reached here at last, and the sur has actually shone for several days this week. Is has been a dull, cold, backward spring, and everybody is looking with interest to the future, which, it is fervently hoped, will be full of promise, if nothing more.

It is also under-stood that Mrs. Daniel Torrance, of New-York, will also rent her cottage. Mrs. Torrance's sister, Mrs. William K. Thorn, of New-York, will arrive at her villa on Narragansett-ave. early next month. Mrs. Torrance and Mrs. Thorn are sisters of the late Commodore Vanderbilt.

New-York, and Mrs. Suter, wife of Bishop Suter, of New-Zealand, are among the arrivals at the hotels.

Mrs. George A. Osgood, of New-York, who has
